TRELLA HALL RESEARCH

WOOLEY & SWEET & HOWARD

TRELLA MAY (ELBERT) HALL did extensive research on the WOOLEY, SWEET, HOWARD, TOY and many other families who were connected by marriage. She was born in 1910 and died in 1985. Her parents were: Gertrude Margaret Howard and William Wallace Elbert. Gertrude's parents were William Henry Howard and Many Alice Melton.

She was married to Albert L Hall

TRELLA (EIBERT) Hall

When I began genealogy about 198 5, the name TRELLA HALL kept showing up. I tried to contact her only to learn that she had passed away earlier that year and that all her research had been donated to the New England Genealogical Society. I contacted tem and an inventor of her collection followed.

In 2017, while trying organize all my research of more than 30 years, it occurred to me that although the name TRELLA HALL kept popping up, I had no idea why she had done such extensive research on some of my husband's ancestry, namely Wooley, Sweet and Howard. So I began checking the Internet and have learned that TRELLA descended from Elikam HOWARD and his second wife, Margaret TRJUESDALE.

Dear Ray:

I am well aware of your tremendous research efforts on the Howard Family. The more I ponder your relative, Mrs. Athla Tankersle's genealogical data, I think we relate through the Leach, Robinson. Sweets, Dunn's and other allied families of Illinois and Indiana. These families may relate to Eliakim Howard and [2] Margaret Truesdale. I connect through Alanson "Lant" Howard and Elizabeth Sweet. Eliakim and Alanson were sons of Sylvester Howard and wife Lyida Bosworth Sweet.

Sylvester and Alanson Howard were some of Illinois and Southeastern Nebraska's earliest Pioneer Families.

I quote from U.S. Treasury Department Claim Notification #179668, dated November 29, 1904, pertaining to Isaac Steele, as follows:

"In the case of Isaac Steele, private, Co. H, 3 Ind. Inf., and Pvt., Co. F, 70 Ind. Vols., a balance has been found due this office, and a certificate No. 8.429825 & 429826 dated Nov. 25, 1904' has been forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment, as follows: $42.14 to Francis J. Hart, (child), Anderson, Ind.; $7.02 to Sarah King, (grandchild), Morrisville, Ill.; $7.02 each to Perry Leach, and Susan Howard, (grandchildren), Louisville, Ill.; $7.02 to Martha Grotts, (grandchild), Alma, Ill.; $7.02 to Monroe Leach, 212 E. Martin St., Litchfield, Ill.; $14.04 each to Chas. W. Steele and Isaac C. Steele (grandchildren), all of Ohiowa, Nebr.; $10.53 to Isaac Stringer, (grandchild), Shelbyville, Ind.; $10.53 to Lydia Lawson, (grandchild), R.R. No. 8, Anderson, Ind.; $2.35 each to Alfred Lynch and Hattie Harkey, (great grandchildren), Irving, Ill.; $2.35 to Della Leach, (great grandchild), R. R. D. No. 1, Waggoner, Ill.; $21.07 to John W. German, (natural guardian of Ray Amos, Roscoe Amos & Mollie Amos, great grandchildren), Franklin, Ind.; $10.54 to Effie L. Perry, (guardian of John W. Stringer, Jessie O. Stringer & David G. Stringer, great grandchildren), Elwood, Ind....."

Further, I quote from the Louisville?, Clay County, Illinois, September 11?, 1928 newspaper, as follows:

"PUBLICATION NOTICE

Anyway, I am wondering if you would send me a copy of your pedigree. I hope to meet with you, when I travel to Des Moines, to meet with my Aunt, Esther Simpson Rash, Pual's wife. I am not certain, if travel will be allowed, due to a February 3rd, 1995, heart attack, due to complications from-on-set diabetes. The only other relative we know about was my great-uncle, Gilbert L. Howard, who died at age 44. He was married to Fanny Hays, of Southeastern Nebraska, mainly around Tobias or Tecumseh.

Fran,

From the Cass County Nebraska Marriage License of Charles V. Howard and Cleo Floyd, I find Bradford A Howard was a witness. In light of the numerous Leeds County, Johnstown District Ontario, Canada ~~Dock~~ find Tilton Howard often dropped his first name of Peter. Trella says his nickname was "Tont"

Therefore; Bradford Alonson "Tont" Howard his son Bradford Delos Howard. Also Seth Bond appears, which adds to my hunch on Bradford as the first name.

Bradford Delos Howard, is where the Bonds and Valentines enter into our family. There had to be an earlier Connection. Why I think Charles Vergnals Valentine. ~~F~~

Edna's family moved to Antelope County Take Care, While my Dad's parents & siblings moved to Holt next county West. Dad was born at Atkinson, Holt Co, NE

Attention: Paul and Terri W. Pope

Dear Paul, Terri and Ken,

I asked my niece to convey an Email for copies of vital records. I have reviewed various University of Michigan microfiche, that suggest Whigtman was one of the spellings for Whitman and the spelling may be Welch. My Pettet's were French Irish and, after the American Revolution, Canadian French. Source: Rev. William Buckley and Christian? Mellows back to the Sureties of the Magna Charta. Immigrant Thomas Pettit/Pettet. Through them I pick up the remaining Sureties or all who had living descendents.

There may be a way to get copies of the Wait Family Bible, without ever leaving our relative's possession. I am a former Audio Visual Technician, Laramie County Library Systems and Microfilm Technician and Recorder for the Homestead Museum. My later purpose was to microfilm all the homestead deeds, about 13 large ledger size volumes, then record and index them on 3 X 5 index cards. Since I have a trained eye for detail in this and my former clock repair days, I most likely could use a lightweight video recorder, with automatic zoom lens, on a tripod and record word for word the Wait Family Bible.

Certification in becoming an American Certified Lineage Specialist requires that an applicant have a 4 year college degree, which was waived by one of the board's ranking members, who tutored me in verifying my Howards, from James William Howard back to the Immigrant. I turned down taking the offer, until such time as, I could prove my theory on the Howards, as an Extinct "Blood Royal Peerage". Better known as the Great Bookham, Surrey, Effingham,Clan..

Now that I have proven it, there are just a few more genealogical endeavors I wish to complete. One is to prove every possible connection to the NSSAR, so far 11 proved, with 13 ready to go and possibly 29 remaining--------about right for 640 allied lines. The Howards became my pet project; the rest were my paternal cousin Trella May Hall's task. Her 18.5 feet bookshelf feet of research is on file at: N.E.H.&G.R., 101 Newbury, Boston, MA. Her research is legally documented from 750 A.D. down to [1985]. All the lines, and all the siblings-the WORKS! Everything is done correctly!

TRELLA MAY (ELBERT) HALL did extensive research on the WOOLEY, SWEET, HOWARD, TOY and many other families who were connected by marriage. She was born in 1910 and died in 1985. Her parents were: Gertrude Margaret Howard and William Wallace Elbert. Gertrude's parents were William Henry Howard and Many Alice Melton.

HISTORICAL NOTE

Trella M. Hall, 1910-1985, was the wife of Albert L. Hall, owner of a sand and gravel company in Larned, Kansas. Although not a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Mrs. Hall became an acknowledged authority on the Sweet and numerous allied families. Her many correspondants around the country provided access to most regional sources. Mrs. Hall died leaving almost thirty years worth of accumulated information, which Mr. Hall donated to the Society at the suggestion of Mrs. Nell W. Reeves. This gift was received on 6 February 1986.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Trella M. Hall Papers, 1783-1985, contain genealogies, records, notes, correspondence and photographs concerning 625 families. Beginning with the Sweet family of Rhode Island, the papers also include large amounts of material on the Hall, Howard, Lindley, Melton, and Newlin families in particular. Numerous others receive varying attention, noticeably Bearse, Beck, Ebert, Huffer, Jones, Pyle, Steele, Truesdale, and Warner.

In addition to her extensive correspondence, Mrs. Hall assembled and circulated manuscript genealogies. Copies were sent back and forth to be annotated with information and corrected. Several of these draft genealogies came to include original as well as copies of photographs.

Mrs. Hall transferred this information to an alphabetical card file of approximately 35,000 entries, from A.D. 740 to 1985. Over 18,000 cards with supporting manuscripts pertaining to the Sweets make up part one of the Hall Papers. The allied families take up a second part, with almost as many cards and their accompanying letters, genealogies, etc. These are followed by several hundred photographs. Most are individual portraits or family groups, although a few home sites are included. The photographic forms range from mid-nineteenth century tintypes to processes of the 1950's.

Dear Sweet Friends:

Most of you already know the rules and regulations for using and mailing these letters to the next person on the list below. For you newcomers I'll repeat them.

We ask that you add anything you can prove to these records - and or correct any errors you may find in your own hand writing adding your initials - using the blank side of the ~~sheet~~ page, when space is lacking on the front of the page; and that within 2 weeks time you will scratch off your own name from the list and mail the book (please insure it for the minimum allowed) to the next person on the list and at the same time drop me a postcard, so that we can keep track of where the books are, when others can expect them etc.

Thanks again to all of you - and hoping each of you will find help in this and future ones to come.

Sincerely

Vanick Wooley, Phillip Hoag, Isaac Hamond & Cornelius Height - no will or widow - My copy of this says Box 658 "Vanick Woolley - John Woolley his father states he died Oct. 10, 1812" which looks like the subject is Vanick Woolley son of John - and if so would be a son John who had son Vanick d. 10-10-1812 but could be a son of this man, as his son Vanick didn't die till 1842 & By 1775 one John Wooley was on tax list at Beekman Precinct, N.Y. & one Load one deed (Quaker) association papers a farm at Beekman the same year. The man who could be a son of this who d. ther 1800 in Washington town a John Wooley was over 45 and with him a female & a male both 26-45 which seems to fit him well if he d. 1812 in Washington - wife already dead and he living with a son or dau. & husband - perhaps a son named John thus might be with the John & family in Beekman 1790 next door to Edward Wooley who had 2-2-3 and on the other side Augustin Wooley with 2-2-5 - if all are sons of John he could be living with anyone of them as all have 2 m. over 16. Benjamin Sweet, c. 1740-1804: His Forebears and Descendants

Rhode Island Beginnings?

by Paul R. Sweet 443 Clifton Blvd., E. Lansing, Mich 48823

One must probably, though not certainly, look to New England for the first traces of our Sweet forebears in colonial America. There is a tradition, often repeated, that the first of them had migrated from Wales. The name Sweet has long been prevalent in Dorset and Somerset across the Bristol Channel from Wales; a Welsh port might have been the point of departure, or persons named Sweet might previously have migrated to Wales. According to another tradition, the first Sweets to migrated to New England came from Devonshire. but this one is certainly wrong because a silver goblet with the same arms carved in stone over the gateway of Old

A John Sweet is known to have been living in Salem in 1632 and died Providence in 1637, where he was owner of one of the original home lots. Shortly after the move to Providence he died. His younger son James (1622-1698) settled first in Warwick and later in Kingston, Rhode Island. James's son Capt. Benoni Sweet (died 1751) was a renowned "natural bone-setter" whose progeny continued the art of bonesetting for several generations and achieved considerable fame. (1)

The older son John (1620-1677) was also settled in Warwick where he was a registered freeman since 1656. If, indeed, our line derives from the Rhode Island Sweets, it is from this John's descendants. (2) He had ~~six sons and seven daughters~~ eight sons, at least two of whom--Daniel (1657-1729) and Henry (b. 1662) moved to East Greenwich. The East Greenwich records contain numerous references to Henry and his descendants. He had six sons and seven daughters. Of these children Joseph (b. 1687) is of most interest to us, for his second son Timothy, born May 27, 1713, is a key figure, and a fundamental one, in our story. On December 22, 1734, Timothy had married Sarah Matteson of East Greenwich, and the births of two children, Peninah--her name also appears in the records as Levinah and Venia--(1735) and Peleg (1737) are recorded in the records of West and East Greenwich respectively. Between 1746 and 1750 Sarah died, and in 1750 Timothy reportedly married the widow Alice Sweet Mitchell, though the record of the marriage has not, so far as I know, been found in the Rhode Island vital statistics.

At some time after the birth of Peleg in 1737--probably several years later-- Timothy supposedly migrated to the Virginia frontier. He is said to have been killed by Indians in the Harpers Ferry region in 1757, after which Alice (who had borne him two children, Timothy and Charles) returned to Rhode Island where she gave birth to another child of Timothy, ~~[illegible]~~ namely Oliver Sweet (1757-1825)

1 An article, "The Bonesetter Sweets of South County, Rhode Island", was published with pictures in Yankee magazine, January 1968. Our nephew, Dr. William Rotton of Utica, N. Y., tells me that a Dr. Samuel Sweet, who was known locally as "bonesetter Sweet", recently died in Utica.

2. Early Records of the Town of Warwick (Providence, 1926) contains a great many references to Jonn and James Sweet; a fascinating book.

Oliver by name. Undaunted, she married a third time to a man by the name of Sherwood, and eventually accompanied some of the younger children of Timothy to Pompey, Onondaga County, New York, where she died in 1814 at the age of 93.(3)

Descendants of the Sweets who settled in Onondaga County took an interest in the family history, and in connection with an occasion called the "Pompey Reunion", the account of Timothy's death in Virginia and of Alice's return to Rhode Island as described above received currency. Furthermore, although it is documented that Timothy and Sarah had two children, Peninah andPeleg, born in Rhode Island, and he and Alice had three more children born between 1753 and 1757, there is an additional tradition, so far undocumented, that Timothy and Sarah had four children--Benjamin, Joseph, a daughter Waite, and perhaps a son David--born in the period 1739-47. So far I have been able to determine, the supposition concerning these four children stems from material published in connection with the Pompey Reunion, but I have not seen the texts of any of this Pompey material and so am not sure that this is actually the source concerning these four children. It is striking, to be sure, that among the definitely known children of Timothy there is a gap from 1737 to 1753. It would seem likely, considering the production of children usual at the time, that Timothy would have had more children in these sixteen years unless his wife Sarah had lost the knack of child-bearing. The point is of crucial interest to the genealogically-interested descendants of Benjamin Sweet (d. 1804), because the notion that our line runs back through Timothy to the Rhode Island Sweets largely rests on the proposition that Sarah had additional children after 1637. There are, it should be added, other straws in the wind. It is notable, for example, that four of Timothy's brothers had names--Joseph, Joshua, Benjamin, and Thomas--that recur among the children or immediate relatives of our Benjamin. It is also worth noting that Robert Raper Sweet, a most knowledgeable and careful student of the family history, heard many years ago from his granduncle William that his (that is William's) own grandfather ~~Benjamin~~ "had been born in one of the New England states." R. R. Sweet noted, however, that the records of Augusta County, Virginia, at Staunton showed two Sweets--William and Leonard--(4) as members of the militia in 1767, and he speculated that the presence of these men on the Virginia frontier suggested the possibility that ~~that~~ these men, and Benjamin too, might have been descendants of persons who had come directly from England to Virginia. This is a line of inquiry that had not, so far as I know, been sufficiently pursued.

Recently Mrs. Trella M. Hall of Larned, Kansas, has called my attention to evidence that casts doubt on the tradition that Timothy Sweet

3. W. W. Clayton, History of Onondaga County (Syracuse, 1878) contains information about the settlement of Timotny Sweet, Jr. in Pompey.
4. Article by R. R. Sweet on Thomas Sweet and his children in Genealogy Vol III, March 1913.

was killed by Indians in 1757--namely, the will of Henry Sweet, Timothy's brother, dated 1772, in which he names Timothy twice as his brother and makes him one of his beneficiaries. This will has been cited before,(4a) but so far as I know the evidence in it indicating that Timothy was still living in 1772 had not been noted before.

With Benjamin we have a fully documented historical figure, but the more one looks into the possible linkage of him with the Rhode Island Sweets through Timothy and Sarah Matteson Sweet the more numerous are the unresolved questions that come to one's attention.

To sum up, the question whether our Benjamin was the son of Timothy and Sarah Matteson Sweet must still be regarded as speculative. The tradition that Timothy and Sarah had children named Benjamin, Joseph, Waite and David seems, so far as I have been able to find out, to be recorded in material connected with the Pompey Reunion and the Sweets who moved to Onondaga County, New York, but the actual Pompey Reunion material I have not myself seen. It is well documented that Timothy, Jr., b. 1753, the son of Timothy and Alice Sweet Mitchell Sweet, settled at Pompey in 1794 and was one of the prominent citizens there. His brother Oliver (1757-1825) and his half-brother Seth Sherwood also settled nearby. Their mother, who was with them, lived until 1814. Since the children of these people continued to live in the area there was opportunity for knowledge about the earlier history of the family and the relatives of the mother to be perpetuated during the next generation or so. Consequently, the Pompey "tradition" is not to be lightly dismissed, although as previously indicated the tradition itself needs to be more carefully investigated.

Benjamin Sweet: The Virginia and Pennsylvania Phases.

The first documentary mention of Benjamin that I have seen is in a list of members of the Frederick County militia (county seat, Winchester) who were entitled to receive pay authorized by the Virginia General Assembly on 14 September 1758.(5) Benjamin was perhaps about eighteen years of age at the time. Was he among the Virginians under Colonels Washington and William Byrd who participated in the campaign culminating in the capture of Fort Duquesne in November ~~1758~~ 1758? In any case, he was attracted by the possibilities for settlement in the newly-won territory, for within a few years he and his wife Martha had established themselves there. The year he moved west and the date of his marriage to Martha Barton I do not know. (For Martha's family name I am indebted to Nancy Strait.) R. R. Sweet, who made extensive researches around the turn of the century and published an informative article on "The Sweet Family" in the Flemingsburg Times-Democrat of 19 October 1900, reports that all of Benjamin's and Martha's children were born in the "Redstone country" of what is now Pennsylvania, and Joshua the second son is said to have been born in 1766. If that is true, Benjamin and Martha would

42. For example at page B of "The Sweet Story". I do not know the author of this typewritten account, a copy of which was given to me by Mrs. Nancy Strait of Goleta, California.

5. The list is printed in T. K. Cartmell, Shenandoah Valley Pioneers and their Descendants: A History of Frederick County Virginia (1908, indexed edition 1963). The session of the Virginia Assembly that voted these payments is discussed in Nellie Norkus, "Virginia's Role in the Capture of Fort Duquesne", Western Pennsylvania Historical Magazine, vol. 45 (1962), p. 305 have made the move by 1765 and would have been among the real pioneers.

A parenthetical word is in order regarding the area designated as the "Redstone country". Strictly speaking it may have been applied to the valley of the Redstone, a creek that flows west into the Monongohela; the town of Brownsville, or Redstone Old Fort as it was once called, is at the juncture of the two streams. But the term "Redstone country" as commonly applied included a much broader area. For example, the "Presbytery of Redstone" comprised all of Southwestern Pennsylvania as well as that part of Virginia (now West Virginia) lying between the western border of Pennsylvania and the Ohio River.

There is no evidence that Benjamin Sweet settled in the valley of the Redstone itself. The evidence points to Peters Creek which flows into the Monongohela from the west, ten miles or so south of Pittsburgh. He was definitely living there in 1781 and quite certainly a good many years earlier. Between 1765 and 1768 settlers, mostly from Virginia, had streamed into the area in anticipation of its being opened up for legal settlement. Circumstances made it easy for squatters to stake their claims, blazing their boundaries on trees.(6) In particular, the rival claims of Virginia and Pennsylvania to the area made for a confused situation with both colonies establishing conflicting and frequently-changing jurisdictions.(7) This also greatly complicates the problem now of tracking down transactions regarding land and so forth. It may account, at least in part, for the fact that no records regarding Benjamin's land holdings have come to light for the first fifteen years or so after he left Virginia. During these first years, as Barbara T. Williams describes the situation in her attractive little book, Peters Township Heritage (1976), "Pennsylvania was more aggressive in providing local government services and controls....Local settlers could depend on the appearance of Pennsylvania officials to collect taxes and enforce laws....Monongohela Valley residents had no choice but to be Pennsylvania citizens." But this changed in 1773 when the royal governor of Virginia, Lord Dunmore, began to espouse vigorously the cause of the transplanted Virginians who had petitioned that the Pennsylvania tax collectors stay away from the territory west of the Monongohela. When Pennsylvania held its ground, virtual inter-colony war broke out. This concerns us here because it was in connection with these events that Benjamin Sweet first comes into public view.

Leader of the Virginians was Lord Dunmore's chief on-the-spot agent, Dr. John Connolly, a formidable character with much experience of the West. After being thwarted and once jailed by the Pennsylvanians, Connolly obtained civil and military authority from Virginia and with his own militia literally seized control at Pittsburgh where, after jailing two rival Pennsylvania judges, he proceeded on 21 February 1775 to set up the West Augusta Court

7. The Peters Creek area until 1775 was in Augusta County, Virginia, with county seat at Staunton; then, 1775-76, it was in West Augusta with county court at Pittsburgh; and finally, 1776-81, in Yohogania County. Simultaneously Pennsylvania claimed it to be in Cumberland County till 1771, then Bedford County 1771-77, and Westmorland County 1773-81 with county seat at Hannastown.

presided over by his uncle, George Croghan, the biggest operator on the frontier. The very next day the Court appointed Benjamin Sweet with four other men to "veiw (sic) the most Conven Way from fort Dunmore (Pittsburgh) to Henry Heaths." (Heath's Plantation, some miles to the south, was soon to be selected as site of the county seat of the short-lived Virginia county of Yohogania.) On two subsequent occasions in 1775 Benjamin was named by the Court to perform similar commissions in determining the best route for a road. And in 1776 and again in 1778 he was appointed with others to appraise the estate of deceased persons. (8)

With the onset of the Revolution, the Virginia party splintered. Dunmore himself took refuge on a British ship in Chesapeake Bay. Connolly joined him there and concocted plans to stir up the West with Indian aid against the Revolutionists, but he was betrayed by John Gibson whom he had taken into his confidence, was arrested at Hagerstown, Md., and spent the rest of the Revolutionary years in various jails. (9) Simon Girty, who received his commission as lieutenant of militia at the same Court session when Benjamin Sweet was given his first assignment, also took the side of the Indians and British; he became famous in the annals of the West as a renegade who reputedly conducted himself more savagely than the so-called savages. Several others among Croghan's relatives and chief associates became ardent tories, though he cast his lot with the colonies. (10)

Concerning the passages in the West Augusta and Yohogania Court records where Benjamin Sweet is mentioned (see Appendix A), the following comments come to mind: 1) The various justices who assigned the commissions to Benjamin were the leading men of the Virginia party in the region: George Croghan; John Connolly; Croghan's cousin Thomas Smallman; Dorsey Pentecost, later county lieutenant of County Augusta; John Campbell later lieutenant of the new county of Yohogania and in 1781 the largest landowner in Peters Township; William Crawford, friend and land agent of Washington and later commander of the ill-fated expedition against the Indians at Upper Sandusky; John Gibson. Gabriel Cox, who served with Benjamin on the various assignments by the court, built a fort on Peters Creek in 1777 and he became known as Major Cox. (11) 2).Although Benjamin Sweet was not a leading citizen, he was sufficiently known to the leaders, and sufficiently in their confidence, to be given useful jobs based on political preferment. 3). While some leaders of the Virginia party, as we have seen, supported George III, and others wavered and laid low, it is evident from the fact that Benjamin was receiving public assignments as late as 1778, as well as from subsequent militia records, that he had gone along with the supporters of the Revolution.

Before the end of the War Virginia and Pennsylvania had reconciled their conflicting claims. Pennsylvania achieved its present boundaries, and in 1781 organized the county of Washington which at first included most of the territory west of the Monongohela. From this time on the documentation concerning Benjamin and his family becomes more explicit, or at least is more available at present. For one thing there are a number of records that show Benjamin, his sons and relatives as active members of the Washington County militia in the years 1782-85, a period of much conflict with the Indians. Benjamin himself belonged to Captain Zadok Wright's company of the 2nd battalion. In the same company were Joseph, who was probably Benjamin's brother, and two men--Thomas Parks and Andrew Thompson--who married daughters of Benjamin.(12) The most soldierly of the family appears, however, to have been Thomas, the eldest son, who became an Ensign in the 1st battalion, second company. He reputedly participated in Colonel William Crawford's expedition against the Wyandot town at Upper Sandusky in June 1782. In the ensuing encounter with a considerable force of Indians and British, a famous event in frontier history, Crawford's men were badly mauled; Crawford himself was captured and burned at the stake in retaliation for the ruthless slaughter earlier in the year of the Indians at the Moravian mission at Gnadenhütte in what is now eastern Ohio.

The first document that I have seen that places Benjamin Sweet in a specific area is the "effective supply tax" list of 1781 for Washington County that shows him owning 300 acres, 2 horses, 5 cattle, and 6 sheep to the value of 268 pounds in Peters Townsnip. (13) In Raymond Martin Bell's Tax Lists of Washington County, 1784-85, 1793, (14) Benjamin is listed as still owning property in Peters Township in 1784. For this he paid taxes of one pound, 5 shillings, and 1 pence. (15)

There are also references in "The Sweet Story" (16) to documents seen by R. R. Sweet. One of these, whose date is not given, was a warrent from the Pennsylvania Land Office for land lying "on ye water of Peters Creek, west of the Monongohela River", and there is a reference also to a Virginia certificate of ownership, dated 25 February 1789, for 400 acres. Why such a certificate should have been issued several years after Benjamin left the area is at this point a matter for speculation, especially since the location of the land is not specified Redstone country. Discontent was rife among the settlers from Virginia, many of whom wanted to separate into a new state. So serious was the situation that the Pennsylvania legislature in 1782 enacted a law "declaring any attempt to organize a new state within the boundaries of Pennsylvania to be high treason and prescribing the death penalty.... The more intransigent of the inhabitants," according to Solon J. and Elizabeth H. Buck, (17) "moved to Kentucky or crossed into Ohio." We do not know the particular motivations that led the Sweets to decide to leave, but we do know that they made the decision at just this time. It seems reasonable to suppose that they shared some of the discontents of other Virginians with the Pennsylvania regime.

Benjamin sold his land on 6 November 1785, though the deed in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County at Pittsburgh was, for some reason, not recorded until 18 August 1795. (18) Not long thereafter he led his family back to Virginia, that is to Kentucky, which only separated from the Old Dominion upon achieving statehood in 1792. R. R. Sweet heard from his uncle William (b. 1808) that the family traveled down the Ohio by flatboat, the usual mode at the time, staying over for a time at the present site of Cincinnati before moving into Kentucky.

Benjamin Sweet and family: the Kentucky phase

The members of this expedition must have been a numerous company. In addition to Benjamin and Martha there were five sons and five daughters. Thomas was already married, and two of the daughters may have been married or betrothed by this time also. In any case the men they married, Thomas Parks and Andrew Thompson were quite likely of the same party, for we find them in the same militia company with Benjamin in Pennsylvania, and they were on the scene soon after the arrival of the family in Kentucky. It is probable that the mysterious Joseph (Benjamin's brother?) was also with them. How they supported themselves on the journey and during the period of getting settled in their new home is, so far, a riddle, though they domonstrably had money when they eventually bought land in Kentucky.

They perhaps first settled in the neighborhood of Washington, the new town three miles up the hill from Limestone (now Maysville) on the Ohio. Certainly they were sufficiently established by August 1786 for Benjamin to sign two petitions to the General Assembly of Virginia--one to set up a new county taking from Bourbon county (which included at that time most of northeastern Kentucky) the territory north of the Licking River; the other one urged that Washington be the county seat of the new county because it was the most "proper place for erecting publick buildings for the use of a county". It was further pointed out that there were already in Washington "fifty families among whom are Mechanicks of diverse kinds." The next year Benjamin signed two similar petitions for a new county. Benjamin's son Thomas also signed three of these petitions, and his son Joshua signed one of them. Furthermore, Joseph Sweet signed two of them. (The above-named petitions are printed in G. Glenn Clift, History of Maysville and Mason County, Kentucky, Lexington, 1956.

It is possible that the records of Bourbon County at Paris may contain documents about real estate transaction involving the Sweets in these first years that they spent in Kentucky, but these records apparently have not been searched by persons interested in the family's history. The earliest documents recording real estate transactions involving the Sweets in Kentucky that I have seen are dated 25 October and 26 November 1789. The first of these bound John Fleming of "the County of Mason and District of Kentucky to make unto Andrew Thompson, Thomas Parks, Thomas Sweet and Joseph Sweet good and sufficient Deeds in fee simple for...four hundred acres of land on" Flemings creek for "800pounds good and lawful money of Virginia." Thomas Sweet of course was the son of Benjamin, Andrew Thompson and Thomas Parks were sons-in-law of his. And here again is the mysterious Joseph.

The second document is a deed for the sale of 334½ acres of land "on the waters of Fleming, a branch of the Licking" by John Fleming and his wife Lucy to Benjamin Sweet: price 133 pounds twelve shillings current money of Virginia" (Mason county records, Maysville)

John Fleming, the seller, with his half-brother George Stockton had made the pioneer settlements around 1787 in what became Fleming county a few years later. Stockton was a famous frontier character; he and his sister, when children, had been taken prisoner from their home in the Shenandoah valley by Indians and lived among them for several years. Fleming and Stockton acquired substantial holdings in Kentucky; Fleming's have been estimated at between 1,000 and 6,000acres. (9) Both of them established "stations", Stockton's within sight of what is now Flemingsburg, Fleming's some five miles to the west. Fleming's consisted of "strongly-built log cabins arranged in the form of a square....The walls of the houses were pierced with port holes."

At this time the wars with the Indians, led by the Wyandots and backed by the British at Detroit, were still raging furiously. Only after the battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794, followed by the Treaty of Greenville with the Western Indians in 1795, was peace brought to the frontier. Samuel Sweet, one of the sons of Benjamin, was killed in this fighting. And Mary, wife of Thomas Sweet, gave birth to a son in a 19. blockhouse. (20) When John Fleming died in 1794 (he had been badly wounded in a fight with a roving band of Indians in 1791), his grave was "immediately obliterated in order to prevent the prowling Indians from examining and mutilating the remains." Some years later, Thomas Sweet, who had been present at the burial, tried to help some of Fleming's descendants locate the grave, but they were unable to do so. (21)

Benjamin Sweet died 3 November 1804. In his will, probated in 1805, he left 5 pounds to each of his eight surviving children, the remainder of the estate, about 100 acres, going to his wife Martha. His third son William was named executor. But in the years shortly before his death Benjamin had sold much of his land. On 13 January he sold 60 acres to his son-in-law Snyder (22) and 50 to his son William. On the next day his son Joshua bought 78 acres; finally, on 6 February 1803 a Richard Green, probably a neighbor, bought 50 acres.

Until her death in 1807 Martha then made her home with her son James from whom my branch of the family is in direct descent. Her "noncupative" will, sworn in court by three witnesses, Thomas Dawkins, Abraham Snyder and Elizabeth Green, 21 May 1807, reads as follows: "Then called upon Abraham Snyder to hear; (sic) Martha Sweets Wish consering (sic) the Land. She said that it was her hearts desire and said that it was old that William Sweet sold (sic) have the Land that was not sold of to James Sweet and she likewise said that it was her hearts Desire and said that it was old Benjamin's desire on his Deth Bed." This was accepted by the court as the "noncupative" will of Martha Sweet. The tract of land in question was surveyed for William Sweet and the surveyer stated it was 44 acres. Furthermore an inventory of Martha's belongings was made by court-appointed commissioners (William P. and John D. Fleming, sons of the late Col. John Fleming); this inventory, a copy of which is hereto appended as Appendix B, was valued at $161.18, from which $19.52 was subtracted for the "administration" of the commission. (23)

This inventory testifies eloquently to the meagerness of the worldly goods accumulated after a life on the frontier. Apparently neither Benjamin nor Martha Sweet could sign their names: their wills are signed with a mark, as is that of their son Thomas which was probated in 1828.

The disposition of the land after Martha's death eventuated several years later in a family squabble. The daughters, their husbands, the heirs of deceased daughters, also Joshua and James Sweet brought suit against "Bill" Sweet, and Thomas Sweet. The parties to the suit--the year being 1821--claimed that Benjamin had died "intestate possessed of a tract of land containing about fifty acres" and that William Sweet "probably by a pretended verbal or noncupative will took possession of said land, that he made a pretended sale thereof and that one Andrew Leeper (who is also a defendant to the bill) is in possession of about 20 acres parcel of said 50 acres and the rest is in possession of your orator James." There are numerous papers in the file, No. 3700, at Flemingsburg C. H. From a cursory examination I had the impression that the decision was in favor of the "orators", but what they got out of it is not clear to me.

Before their deaths three of Benjamin's sons--Joshua, William, and James--moved to Ohio. The daughters, Hanna, Mary, Susannah, Rachel, and Freelove, however, married Kentucky men and remained in the state, as did the oldest son Thomas.

James Sweet, b.6-9 ?-1778-1854 m Apr. 17

James is a rather dim figure. It is known that he married Elizabeth Furman in 1799, and that his mother made her home with him after her husband died; but his brother William, not he, was the executor of her estate. In general, as we have seen, the older brothers Thomas and William appear to have been the more aggressive heirs. The census of 1810 records that James then maintained a household of 3 sons and 2 daughters, with no slaves. In 1821 he was a party to the law suit against William and Thomas. But had he bought a farm in northern Kentucky before moving with his sons Andrew and Benjamin to Ohio around 1832? Anna Hair Findley, whose "Memories", written in 1950, were partly based on what she had been told as a girl by her grandparents, states that the [James] Sweets were living near Covington in 1830. A closer study of the Kentucky records ~~James~~ would probably clear up the question. 1830 Carton Dist. Fleming Co. Ky. p.64 James Sweet Couple 50-60, f.30-40 m.20-30 m.15-20 m.5-10. Fleming Co. Ky. Upon moving to Ohio around 1832, James and his sons Andrew and Benjamin appear to have settled first near Marathon in Clermont County just over the line west of Brown County. By 1836, however, they were living in Brown County. Records at Georgetown, the county seat, show for 1836 a surprising amount of real estate activity involving them, the most significant document being one of 2 July specifying that Andrew J. and Benjamin F. Sweet, legal heirs of James Sweet, had this day received from James Sweet a deed with General Warranty for lands on which the said James Sweet now resides...allowing the said James Sweet the...sole control of so much of the lands as he may improve or wish to cultivate during his natural life and that of his wife." This land, located in Perry township, amounted to 340 acres. In addition the records at Georgetown show Benjamin and Andrew in possession of several hundred acres jointly or in their own names. (It is possible that the Clermont county records at Batavia may contain documents concerning the settlement of the Sweets around Marathon; it is to be noted that Lucy, daughter of Benjamin, who married the Methodist preacher John Sullivan, was still living at Marathon at the time of the Civil War.) a newspaper clipping owned by Ruby Byland re the death of Lucy's mother Jane Robinson Sweet on 9-9-1896 in Baldwin Kans. James's wife, nee Elizabeth Furman, died in 1838. He lived until 1854. His grave is reportedly in the cemetery of Cramer's Chapel. I tried to locate this cemetery (1980), looking and making inquiries in the neighborhood of Five Mile, but I did not find it. Benjamin (1809-1887) and Jane Robinson Sweet (1809-1896)

With Benjamin Furman Sweet and his wife, Jane Robinson, whom he had married in 1830, the written record becomes much more abundant. In addition to what can be found out from court house records, there are written recollections of grandchildren and, above all, a fund of over a hundred letters written to them in the years 1873-96 by their children and other relatives. These letters recently came into the possession of James R. Wood of Falls Church, Virginia, a descendant of them through their daughter Elizabeth who married a James Hair.

Like her husband, Jane Robinson was born in 1809, but in Virginia, in Culpeper County. She had been taken at the age of three, however, to Hardin County, Kentucky. The family farm was near Big Spring, which in my atlas is just over the county line in Breckinridge County. Anna Hair Findley (1871-1954) who saw much of her grandparents particularly in their later years reports that Jane's father was "considered well to do for those days". He raised horses and cattle but his "greatest assets were slaves". Jane's Big Spring relatives who wrote to her after 1870 seem to have been pretty hard up, constantly worried about the weather and the tobacco crop. Anna Findley tells a romantic story of how her grandfather Benjamin met his wife Jane. Benjamin had heard from his brother Andrew, who had been to the prosperous Robinson farm to buy stock, that twelve daughters graced the Robinson table. He asked to go with Andrew on his next trip, stayed three days, fell in love, and a few months later returned with an extra horse to carry off his bride. Jane's father gave her one or more slaves as a wedding present (there are conflicting accounts about the number and the disposition made of them). Anna Findley heard from Benjamin himself, her grandfather, that there were quite a number of slaves and that he went to the courthouse and freed them. But another grandchild says the present consisted of one slave girl. This grandchild

Paul W. Sweet, has written that after Jane and James moved to Ohio "it was one of their great regrets that they had not set the slave girl free, rather than sell her as they did." (Biographical Introduction to W. H. Sweet, A History of Methodism in Southwest Kansas, 1920) The Kentucky Sweets do not seem to have been slaveholders. Neither their wills nor the census of 1810 (which enumerates the members of the households of Thomas, William and James) record any slaves. They were, rather, of that yeoman pioneer class, prevalent throughout the slave states, which lived by its own labor and scratched a hard livelihood from the soil.

The first generation of those who settled in Ohio largely repeated the Kentucky experience of their forebears forty-five years earlier, except that they did not have to contend with the Indians. They cleared their land, were perhaps a little land-poor, lived in log cabins, and had few of this world's goods. The soil in Brown and Clermont counties, Ohio, is, to be sure, on the whole better than that of Fleming county. Although at the present time (1980) the area lies just beyond the urban spread of Cincinnati, it is still very rural--flat and a little drab. In Five Mile, near which my grandfather was born in 1843, a cross-roads country store, sleepily presided over by an elderly merchant, is a remnant of what was once a characteristic feature of midwestern rural life, but is now fast becoming a rarity. In the 1830s the land still had to be cleared of the dense forest for farming. The family of Jane and Benjamin lived in a little log cabin for many years after settling in Ohio. Paul W. Sweet has written: "I have heard father describe their log cabin and their log school house, both of which were primitive indeed. The logs were hewn by hand out of the medium sized trees of the forest, while the cracks between the logs were filled with mud, which would often dry and fall out of place. The boy's bedroom was in the attic or loft of the cabin, which was reached by a rude ladder. Here the wind, on winter nights whistled between the cracks and under the eaves and it was not unusual for them to awaken in the morning to find a drift of snow across the floor or even sometimes across the bed. The first school which father attended was conducted in a log school house, where slabs, hewn but by hand served as desks and home-made stools with pegged legs served for seats."

At what generation did our forebears become literate? Old Benjamin and Martha Sweet could not sign their names, nor could their son Thomas, although this was no bar to a respectable place among their neighbors. Could Thomas's brother James, my great great grandfather, who was born in the Redstone country, married to Elizabeth Firman in Fleming County in 1799, moved to Ohio around 1830 and was buried there in 1854, write his name? His son Benjamin, and Benjamin's wife Jane Robinson, presumably had no more formal education than Abraham Lincoln who was born in the same year as they were. After a few rudiments it would have depended on the person's own initiative to determine the level of literacy. The obituary of Jane Robinson Sweet (Baldwin, Kansas, Bee 13 Aug. 1896) states that she and her husband had had little opportunity for education in early life and "their married life was entered upon in poverty." The 1807 inventory of "old Martha Sweet" lists, however, a "Bible Testament and Ripins Colection" valued at 6 shillings and 9 pence, and a "Testament and Russels Sermons" valued at 4 shillings six pence. Was this earlier generation able to read, laboriously, but not write?

As for their religion we know that Benjamin and Jane Robinson Sweet (who had been a Baptist in early life) were ardent members of the Methodist Church in Ohio. Jane was noted for her singing, in which capacity she was in demand for miles around; on several occasions she crossed back into Kentucky to participate in Methodist meetings. Concerning Jane and her husband her obituary states: "The church and its interest were their constant care....In revival services, quarterly meetings and camp meetings they were ever ready to share the burdens of labor and joy of service." The family letters, previously mentioned, abundantly document the importance of religious observance in the lives of all of them; they all likewise bear witness constantly to their faith that, after the vicissitudes of life, they would meet again "on the shining shore where so many of our loved ones are gathered." (undated letter of Lucy Sullivan) The reality of death is ever present, along with concerns for the weather and the crops. Mention of what is going on in the larger world finds no place amonst the ordinary details of daily living except for a rare expression of sympathy for the temperance movement. Mistakes in spelling abound , and the language of course is that of colloquial country speech.

GRAND FATHER of PAUL R. SWEET. (F.W.)

Not long after the Civil War ended, the children of Benjamin and Jane Sweet, together with some of their neighbors, began an exodus to Nebraska and Kansas. The first to leave was their daughter Elizabeth and her husband and former neighbor at Five Mile, James Hair. In 1866 they settled near Nebraska City, down the Missouri from Omaha. Neighbors from Ohio helped them build their log cabin. Soon afterwards, Elizabeth's brother William (my grandfather), having attended a Normal School at Lebanon, Ohio, went out to Nebraska City and briefly taught school there, but wishing to enter the ministry, he returned to Ohio, to Ohio Wesleyan, where, after various intermissions to earn money, he graduated in 1872 at nearly 29 years of age. His future wife, Rose Williams, eight years younger, had graduated the previous year. He promptly went back to Kansas to teach at Baker "University" in Baldwin, and the next year he was admitted on trial to the Kansas Conference of the Methodist Church. One of his brothers, Andrew, was already in Kansas when William moved to the state in 1872. Andrew had a farm near Stockdale, not far from Manhattan.

Soon after William H. began to teach at Baker in 1872 his parents also arrived in Kansas, having apparently decided at the age of 63 to retire from farming, though they did not sell their farm in Ohio right away. They spent the winter of 1872-73 with Andrew at Stockdale. Despite his hard beginnings, Benjamin had evidently prospered, at least in a modest way, but he does not seem to have given his children much financial support after they were grown; their letters to him in the 'seventies and 'eighties do show them frequently borrowing money from him at interest, however. Anna Findley writes: "Grandfather was ever stern but was always gentle with grandmother."

The son who had the most difficulty in making his way in the world was Thomas, who was the last of the family to leave Ohio. He is said to have suffered from "diseases contracted while in the army". When he went ot Kansas, to his brother Andy's at Stockdale, his health was far gone and he had not long to live. He died in 1881. In his letters, which are not to be sure those of a much educated person, he comes through to me as the most appealing of all the children--affectionate, sensitive, and distressed that he had not made more of a success in life.

Tom's twin brother James had also been a victim of the war, not the war between the states, but as Anna Findley stille called it in 1950, The Rebellion. He was killed at Vicksburg in 1863 and lies buried at the national cemetery there. Upon learning of Thomas's death, a woman in Ohio, who evidently had lived for years in the family, possibly as a servant, wrote to his parents: "...today while I am conversing with you through the medium of pen and paper, Tom and Brother Jim are conversing around the throne of God. Oh I know it has been a hard trial for you both in your old age. The other two brothers, Andrew and William H., also were soldiers in the Union Army. (I have the original of a very interesting and well written letter which J. M. Sullivan, who was a chaplain in the same regiment as James, wrote to his wife Lucy in Marathon about her brother's death the day before. I also have copies of several letters written by James in the months preceding his death.) The other two brothers, Andrew and William H., also served in the Union Army.

From 1872, when he first went to teach at Baker, until 1886, William H. --with an interlude 1877-79--was connection with the college, the last seven years as president. After their first Kansas winter in Stockdale, his parents also came to Baldwin to live, remaining there the rest of their lives. In 1879, their daughter Lucy, who had married the Methodist preacher James M. Sullivan, likewise moved to Baldwin; her husband was "agent" for the college. And not long thereafter, in 1882, the other daughter, Elizabeth, whom we last noted living in Nebraska City, brought three of her children also to live at Baldwin. As her daughter, many years later wrote: "Very disturbing trouble came to us. Our home was divided and father left us. Mother along with four grand boys and myself struggled against odds until her brother Will Sweet, then president of Baker University, wrote to her saying that if she would move to Baldwin, he would help her by seeing that she would have all the students she could care for by giving them room and board." The letters in the possession of James Wood are silent about this skeleton in the family closet, but Mr. Wood writes that Elizabeth reportedly had stood up in church and denounced her husband.

After 1886, William H. Sweet, the first of the family to live in Baldwin, never resided there again. But the family connection with Baldwin and Baker remained strong, particularly through the descendants of his sisters and their husbands--the Sullivans, Siegrists, Hairs, and Randalls. Just recently the Baldwin Tele-News (3 July 1980) carried a feature article about J. M. and his wife Lucy Sweet Sullivan and the house they purchased in 1879 when Sullivan became agent for Baker. When first built, around 1863, the house was considered "the finest residence in town." It has now been moved about a mile out of Baldwin. The article gives fascinating details about Lucy, notably her venture into politics in 1889 when she was elected mayor of Baldwin with an all-women council. After trouncing "the masculine power" the ladies abolished the sale of cider in less than 5 gallon quantities, they shut down a building where loafers congregated, and they cleaned up the sidewalks and alleys. After two years of this, male power reasserted itself; since then Baldwin has had no other female mayor.

In 1886 William H. Sweet moved to Salina to teach at Kansas Wesleyan which had just been established by the Northwest Kansas Conference. Although he only taught at the college one year, he lived nine years out of the next eleven in Salina, first as pastor of the First Methodist Church, and then as Presiding Elder of the Salina District of the M.E. Church. Consequently, during most of the years that the older children--Bertha, Paul, William Warren--were going to school before college, Salina was their home town. During the rest of his life William H. kept a close connection with Kansas Wesleyan. He was practically a permanent member of the board of trustees and served as president of the board for many years. Before retiring from the ministry around 1916 he returned to Salina for his last pastorate. The two youngest children, the twins Ralph and Ruth, were sent to Kansas Wesleyan, but the three oldest graduated from Ohio Wesleyan, and Emma from Bryn Mawr. The children were never left in any doubt by their parents that they were destined for college, though the boys were expected to pay most of their way, which they did by participating in the wheat harvest and selling books house to house. In the latter enterprise, as a seller of Dr. Chase's First Last and Complete Receipt Book, etc., a compendioum not only of recipes but of remedies for all manner of diseases, Paul W. was phenomenally successful. During his college years he put away enough money to finance his medical education. The three sons all received advanced degrees, Paul W. from Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, Ralph an M. D. from the University of Pennsylvania, and William W. a Ph. D. in history from the same institution. But none of the children stayed in Kansas. Paul went to the state of Washington to establish a medical practice and he was followed there by Ralph; the younger sisters, Emma and Ruth, also settled in Washington, the former as Mrs. Lyman Tondel, the latter as Mrs. A. S. Kresky. Eventually Centralia and Seattle became the places of residence of the Washington Sweets, and around 1916 William H. and his wife Rose retired to Centralia. They died there within a few days of each other in 1919.

And so a familiar pattern repeated itself. In a previous generation the fathers had followed the sons from Kentucky to Ohio; in the next generation parents had followed the children from Ohio to Kansas; now the parents followed four of the children from Kansas to Washington.

But in the next generation a large dispersion occurred. The grandchildren of William H. and Rose Sweet are scattered over the northern United States and the great grandchildren are still more dispersed, though a considerable feeling of Sweet solidarity still remains.

So forget it!

ii.Marshall's argument with Trella's 29 Nov 1982 comments for Daniel Taylor's will was, she had the will made 20 to 30 years earlier---exact date of departure from London, England. I had another exact copy of the first "Delayed Entry", made 20 to 30 years---exact date of death at his sister's home in Maryland, on his way back to Virginia, from Rhode Island.

iii. Summation i and ii nearly caused the end of Trella's and my long time friendship. Especially since I stood on the "Delayed Entry" concept and went ahead and put this idea in my rough draft copyrighted text: A RESUME of the EFFINGHAM HOWARDS---TWENTY--TWO GENERATIONS AND BEYOND!

Some years back, I corresponded with the Laramie Peak, Wyoming Pioneer Robinson Family, a few weeks after Frank Delos Howard died. Mrs. Robinson, the granddaughter I believe, gave me the only clue they were told repeatedly: that the Delos and Howard family were from Manchester, England. I checked all the Boston, Manchester County, England records with zero result. However, I would have had great success, if I had known about the allied family name of Knox. Please refer to the above American Genealogical information.

It was Frank Delos Robinson, Sr. and my grandfather Harry Delos Howard who were here in Wyoming eight years before statehood. Again, the 1900/1910 WY State Census, I believe, my grandfather and Frank appear in Douglas. Everyone in my family found it odd that their father or my grandpa was in Douglas, so early. However, it was a known fact Grandpa was here before statehood, as a very young boy.

The Robinsons, Howards and Allied families were thick and heavey in Vermillion, Illinois and came from upper New York with the Howards. Mainly Eliakim Howard and wife Margaret Truesdale and the allied Leach and Steele Families were among the Vermillion, Illinois connection. My side continued onto Jacksonville and Diamondville, Morgan County, Illinois.

In my copyrighted rough draft book A RESUME OF THE EFFINGHAM HOWARDS - subtitled TWENTY-TWO GENERATIONS AND BEYOND, I stressed that our Howards never made a move to parts unknown, not until other family had gone ahead and established themselves, so the family that would arrive later would have shelter, food and other essentials. Therefore, Richard Howard certainly was the first in Boston, where his son Edward, grandson Edward and great grandson Matthew made their home.

Matthew was the first to move South, Southwest and Southeast to Tiverton, Little Compton, Dartmouth and Rochester. The point is clear that either William Taylor and/or Richard Howard and/or both first arrived in Boston on their way to Virginia.

I suppose we should relocate the wills of William and step-son Daniel Taylor that Trella had and were 20 to 30 years earlier than the ones listed in Water's Genealogical Gleanings Volume 1, page 272-273. Water's are duplicates, but 20 to 30 years later. My reasoning with Trella was, the earlier wills were the exact date of departure from England and the later were the exact date of death in New England. Remember, Daniel Taylor, was in Rhode Island, on his way to Virginia when he died at his sisters home in Maryland. Also, Daniel's will mentions "Cousin Sarah Howard" and Cousin Matthew Howard".

NOTE: Once again I will be in Dahlgren, VA this Christmas and New Years. I will be 30 minute from a D.C. Metro or a 1 hour drive to the Maryland Hall of Records and a 1 hour drive to Richmond. I will be spending most of my time at my sister's time share condo at Massanutten, Virginia 22840, located east of Harrisonburg, about 10 miles.

Dahlgren is about 20 miles northeast of Fredricksburg. Part of Dahlgren, when the tide is down is really in Maryland. Going north over the toll bridge, a visitor is in Maryland in short order. Mainly the best eating establishing and bar is in Maryland, and yet in the town of Dahlgren. If the climate remains calm, no major storms, mother and I will head to Little Silver, NJ to visit her aunt. A short distance from the New Jersey State Capitol and Archives.

[201] The Howards claim a most illustrious lineage. The family in England holds first place in the English peerage, and its head, the Duke of Norfolk, is the first of the Dukes and hereditary Earl Marshal of the kingdom. The house descends in the male line from William Howard, "a learned and reverend judge," of the reign Edward I., from the beginning of its history has been allied with the most illustrious names of the houses founded after the Norman Conquest. The New England family of the name descends from one of the younger branches of the ancient house, and has ranked among the foremost of American families since the middle of the seventeenth century.

Captain Benjamin Beal Howard, father of the late Francis E. Howard, was a noted captain of whaling vessels, and figured prominently in the industry in New Bedford when it was at its height.

She goes on to say "The search was done by Dr. Clarence Howard and the records put into a library associated with the Queens University in Kingston, Ont. which was destroyed by fire. Dr. Clarence Howard had 2 daughters who were not interested in gen. and when their father died they threw his records away."

From Dr. Lenords Howards' chart Dr. Leonora (Howard) Kings g.g. father was Matthew Howard b. 1740 son of Wm. Howard & his 2nd wife Mary Tallmon."

Maybe these clues would help you with your efforts to join the Baronial Order of the Magna Carter if all descendents of the 1st Barons would be Barons or Baronessis. Were they? If so see Genealogical Table II from The House of Howards - if you made copy of it - if not and available there get copy of it as it shows the Mowbray line to the Howards differently than what you have on the latest Work sheet - & begins with Roger then John as 2nd Baron, John 3rd Baron, John 4th Baron, Baron Thomas, then Margaret m. Dear Fran,

I am amazed at the depth of new information you recovered, copied and sent me in your June 17, 1994 letter, thank-you!

I am in the process of correcting the mistakes found at Newburg/Newbury Library. My father did not die in 1917, instead March 20, 1992.

On February 6, 1994, I submitted an application to THE HEREDITARY ORDER OF FIRST FAMILIES OF MASSACHUSETTS, pertaining to William Howard who married Margaret Stuart of Stuart Castle, their son Samuel [Edward] Howard who married Hannah Esther Hawkins, their son Matthew Howard who married Mary Case and so forth. On June 24, 1994, I received from Roswell Levi Atwood, that my application and verification was accepted and approved by the Genealogist of the Hereditary Order on the previous day, or June 23, 1994. In other words, we are one step away from the Barons and Dames of Runneymead.

I am now working on the research, verification and writing of Hannah Howland and Jonathan Bosworth, Jr. or Volume 6 of THE PILGRIM JOHN HOWLAND series. I volunteered since Mrs. Elizabeth P. White is in need of help. She is working on volume 3. Mary Bosworth Clarke, has done a lot of the work, but I have found mistakes, in Mary's 1926 publication. Once I verify her findings with new primary sources, than I will proceed with G.S.M.S. applications for all accepted claims to Hannah Howland and Jonathan Bosworth, Jr. and proceed to prove each family with children and so forth. I believe you understand the process, I get confused explaining it.

From: A Sweet Family History by Geneva Cross 1995

His father was happy because he saw the cemetery markers.

Bill, in 1970, suggested that Trella Hall, Howine Dalton, and I have a convention in Rhode Island, so we could see the cradle of the Sweet family and "rock it, too". In another note he mentioned having 375 William Sweet records, but no Will J. Sweet about whom someone had inquired. (Will J. is in our records)

Another note from Bill: "In regards to the wills of John (4) and his wife Lydia Whaley, after 2 fires and water damage to these records, plus 224 years, they are very hard to read. I have copied them over four different times." Bill died in 1977. One copy of the microfilm reels and his original files were given to the RI Historical Library in Providence.

Two other correspondents have been mentioned: TRELLA HALL (Mrs. Albert Hall) and HOWINE DALTON (Mrs. Duncan Dalton).

Future genealogists who will be too late to communicate with Trella Hall of Larned, KS, will have missed a rare experience. My introductory letter from Trella came 20 December 1967. She, also, kept her records on 3 x 5 cards and that is the way she wanted information sent to her so she did not need to copy it. I failed to cooperate, I'm sure. She mentioned in that letter that her goal was to straighten out the records of "this complicated family". She nosed out errors and did her bit to correct them.

Trella's style of correspondence was remarkable. She did not type, which could be forgiven. After writing a letter, she went back and added notes between the lines, also giving her sources of information. Then when you wrote her, she returned your letter, with copious notes between the lines, often in red ink. I made the mistake of leaving good margins, and they, too, were filled with notes. But Trella knew, and wise were the persons who took the time to figure out what she was saying. It was Trella who made available a number of notebooks from Florence Sweet Wetzel's records, and circulated them for a time. These are now on microfilm in the LDS library. Trella died in May, 1983, and her three to five hundred pounds of material may have been sent to the New England Historical Society.

The daughter of Eva Marsh, Howine Dalton, of Waterloo, Quebec, has been great in helping me over the years. She inherited her mother's keen interest in family and carried on as only a professional could do. It has been my privilege to not only correspond with her but to visit her family and her parents a number of times. Genevieve and her husband visited Howine and Duncan in 1983, parking their motor home in the yard for two nights. The Daltons stayed in Joyce's apartment

THE PELEG SWEET AND ABIGAIL BARDEEN FAMILY
(1786-1850) (1790-1870)

PELEG SWEET, son of JONATHAN SWEET and TEMPERANCE HOLDRIDGE was born May 3, 1786 in Hancock, Massachusetts. ABIGAIL BARDEEN, daughter of MOSES BARDEEN and CATHERINE COOK was born April 2, 1790 in Croydon, New Hampshire. PELEG and ABIGAIL were married July 3, 1808 and lived in Burlington, N. Y. where four of their twelve children were born.

	born	married	died
LAMIRA ANN CAROLINE SWEET	Jan. 10, 1810	Mar. 29, 1832	May 8, 1899
Mary J. Sweet	Feb. 9, 1813	Apr. 5, 1838	Oct. 19, 1881
Temperance Sweet	Feb. 21, 1815	May 8, 1834	Mar. 24, 1875
Elizabeth Sweet	Sep. 18, 1817	Oct. 18, 1838	Nov. 4, 1909

~~In 1819~~ the family moved west in a covered wagon. They first moved to Ohio and then settled in Illinois, ~~probably~~ in Morgan County near Jacksonville. When they left New York their little girls were 9, 6, 4, and 2. The next child, a boy, was born in 1821 either in ~~Ohio or~~ Illinois. The other eight children born to PELEG and ABIGAIL were:

Isaac N. Sweet	Feb. 2, 1821	Mar. 9, 1864	May 14, 1900
Catherine Sweet	Apr. 25, 1822	Jan. 26, 1846	Oct. 30, 1915
Anna E. Sweet	Apr. 16, 1825	Apr. 6, 1843	Jul. 1, 1915
Abigail C. Sweet	Mar. 2, 1826	Dec. 28, 1843	Jun. 5, 1911
Malinda Sweet	May 2, 1828	Feb. 1, 1846
Abiud E. Sweet	Apr. 18, 1830	Oct. 7, 1852	Mar. 14, 1895
Solon A. Sweet	Jan. 26, 1833	Mar. 9, 1856	Jun. 18, 1895
Enoch J. Sweet	Jul. 12, 1836	Apr. 2, 1860	Dec. 3, 1882

PELEG's parents, JONATHAN and TEMPERANCE SWEET and at least one sister of PELEG's moved to Illinois also. JONATHAN died in Jacksonville, Illinois Dec. 20, 1837 and TEMPERANCE died Nov. 1, 1842 also in Jacksonville. They lived to see all of PELEG's children born and JONATHAN lived to see three and TEMPERANCE four of PELEG's oldest daughter LAMIRA's children. TEMPERANCE was alive when LAMIRA's son, JORDAN T. HOWARD was born in 1841. He was my great grandfather.

PELEG's sister married Eliakim Howard, son of SYLVESTER HOWARD and LYDIA SWEET. Eliakim was PELEG's and his sister's second cousin. Trella Hall, who is descended from Eliakim Howard and PELEG SWEET's sister compiled a lot of these records. Her address (in 1971) is given below.

LAMIRA married STEPHEN H. HOWARD, Eliakim's brother, son of SYLVESTER HOWARD and LYDIA SWEET. They were the parents of William, Nelson, Justus, JORDAN and Abigail and another child who died in infancy. Nelson and Abigail died young. The other three married and raised families. JORDAN, my great grandfather, was born in Morgan County Illinois near Jacksonville, but LAMIRA and STEPHEN moved to Washburn, Illinois in 1855. They ~~probably~~ lived in Chenoa, Illinois later because they were both buried there. STEPHEN died in 1884 and LAMIRA moved to Cherryvale, Kansas in 1887 with JORDAN and his family. Her son, Justus, also moved to Cherryvale. LAMIRA died there in 1899.

Mary J. Sweet married Isaac W. Carson on April 5, 1838.

Temperance Sweet married Tilton Howard, STEPHEN's brother, on May 8, 1834.

Elizabeth Sweet married their brother, Alanson Howard on Oct. 18, 1838. Mrs. Floyd Byrne, whose address is given below is descended from one of these Sweet-Howard couples.

Isaac Sweet married Louisa P. Abbott March 9, 1864.

Catherine Sweet married Ed Dunham Jan. 26, 1846. They lived in or near Cherryvale, Kansas in about 1890. A large group of Sweets and Howards visited them there and had their picture taken.

From RESEARCHER NANCY JO ~~SCHENCK~~ KIGI IN HOWARD BOOK

Anna Sweet married John M. Scroggin April 6, 1843.

Abigail Sweet married John M. Taylor Dec. 28, 1843. Their descendant, Duane Taylor English lived in Illinois in 1971. His address is given below.

Malinda Sweet married Philip Jenkins Feb. 1, 1846. They had a daughter named Myrtle.

Abiud Sweet married Mary Jane Spaur Oct. 7, 1852. They had a son named Oscar and a daughter named Eva. Oscar had a daughter, Lola, who married a man named Hayes. They had a son, Raymond. Eva married a man named Osborn. They had a daughter, Eunice, who married a man named Cutter. Raymond E. Hayes and Eunice Cutter both lived in Illinois in 1971. Their addresses are given below.

Solon Sweet married Elizabeth Toy March 9, 1856.

Enoch Sweet married Emma Toy April 2, 1860. She was probably Elizabeth's sister. (Ralph Howard's wife was a Toy.)

PELEG SWEET died Sept. 9, 1850 at the age of 64 after all of LAMIRA's children were born. ABIGAIL BARDEEN SWEET died Nov. 13, 1870 at the age of 80. Her great granddaughter LIZZIE (my grandmother), JORDAN's daughter, was then four years old. PELEG and ABIGAIL were both buried in Chenoa, Illinois.

lived with youngest son Enoch in Washburn, Ill.

I am afraid I don't have anything much of help for genealogy purposes for the Joys.

Much of the material I have for has been furnished me by Mrs. Trella Hall, box 227, Larned, Kas., a great-granddaughter of a brother of my grandfather Howard but she has been a close cousin to me in the way of family history. She has gone into research in a big way. (She is a D.A.R. - I never bothered about it.)

Your letter sounds like you have a very interesting family.

I will close and hope I have had something to interest you. (A lady just phoned she was coming by to take my mail to box for which I am very thankful.

Heaps of love,

Mabel (Howard) Selby.

The Watkins families of Halifax County are very extensive, and many of them are descendants of Thomas Watkins, of Chickahominy, "Swift Creek." A name like the ancestral "Joel" Watkins, almost in toto, known for honesty, integrity and uprightness.

I wouldn't want to say for sure that F.S.W. goofed here, before seeing her Vol III James 2 book - but from everything I've found on the Nehemiah who m. Mary Whitman - he belongs to the Attleboro, Mass. family son of John + Sarah McLeffin (Claflin) g.g. son of Henry + Eliz. Walker - V.R. of Attleboro shows him b. 4-26-1790 and the records there don't show him again - so he died? or moved away - and certainly fits the Nehemiah who shows up in Prov. R.I. on the military lists (was Lt. in 1st Co. 1st Brig. 1st Div. and in the census records there from 1774 to 1810 and d. there 9-29-1819 in 29th year. Wife Mary Whitmore (m. 2-20-1765 Prov. This Nehemiah Sweet had a twin bro. Noah + a bro. Wooley Coat of Arms.

The Arms of the Wooley family here given are those found in the possession of one Anthony Wolley XII. of Riber, brother of Edward of Crich in the visatation of Derbysh 1634, and recorded in the College of Arms. they are; "Sable, a chevron vaire or and [illegible] between three maidens' heads argent, crined Or". The crest is "A demiman vest. GULES azure face proper" In English of today the shield is; Black with a chevron showing [illegible] ermine fur in red and gold, and three maidens heads silver and gold. the demiman is shown in the oldest emblazonment as a man's head as herein shown. these arms had long been borne by the family, as Ormerod states that their arms in Cheshire, before 1400 were : "A chevron vair (or contrevair) between three human heads couper at the neck, affrontee" which is the arms above described. The Wolley branch which remained in Hollingsworth later took other arms. A hatchment of the Wolley arms, on wood or canvas, Hangs in the south chapel of Matlock Church, too high to be well seen in the dim light.

CHARTULARY

The original granting of these arms is not found in the College of Arms. In the GREAT fire of 1666, their records were carted to a place of safety, but two small books WERE lost. The arms as shown on the pedigree of Wolley of Riber do not appear as in the Wolley Mss. this is from Bryans History, being combined with some other arms of an intermarriage.

Wooley, a hamlet of Hollingsworth, in Macclesfield Hundred, Cheshire, gave name to the family as early as the 13th century. This family is mentioned in the Massie Chartulary and in Watson's Mss. and often in original charters relating to the parish of Hollingsworth.

I. Radulf, Rafe or Ralph de Wolegh, of whom we know nothing except the name OF his son, II. Ralph de Wolegh son of Ralph, mentioned 1294.

III. William de Wolegh, son of Ralph, quits, in 1308, to his eldest son Ralph Wolegh, all his movable and immovable goods. Sibil, widow of the grantor, confirms to his son Radulf this and other lands in Hollingsworth, the 6th year of Edward "the third after the Conquest" 1332.

IV. Ralph de Wolegh, in possession of the lands at Wolegh (as the place was then called) sold to his brother Richard, by fine (A form of real estate conveyance tenaments there (Place Rolls, 4 and 5 Edward III, 1331-2). Radulf or Ralph conveyed lands or rents to Johanne of Oldham in 1351. In 1355 he conveyed lands or rents to Domini Roberto, his mothers confirmation being in relation to these transactions. He conveyed lands in Hollingsworth, 10 Edward III 1336 with Richs (Richard de Woley a younger brother).

He purchased lands in Broadbottom, a hamlet in Mottram in the parish of Mattersley, Macclesfield Hundred, Cheshire, at some time after 1330 from Gilbert de Hyde and Robert de Hugh. In 43 Edward III 1369 he settled these lands on his son Robert, with remainders to his other children. These lands were retained in the family for six generations. His wife's name is unknown. His children according to Adam Wolley and Ormerod, were ——

Thomas

Roger M.P. for Derby 1415 and 1425.

William

Alice

V. Robert de Woley was living at Broadbottom, Cheshire, in 1369 when his brother William released to himall grounds, goods, tenements and chattels, but in the third year of Richard, "Second from the Conquest" (1379 or 1380) his widow, Agnes as quondam uxt (erstwhile wife, i.e. widow) conveyed land to some person whose name is not clear in the crabbed and contracted medeival Latin of the old parchment.

Adam showed in his pedigree a son of Robert, named

VI. Roger Woley, who was living in 1386-7 but when the Heralds made their Visitation of Derbyshire in 1634, the ancestry they recorded shows John (next herein given as a son of Robert. as, how ever the dates appear to require a generation at this time I am inclined to believe that Adam the Collector found an ancestor unknown to the Heralds of 1634.

VII. John Woley, son of Roger (according to Adam Wolley) lived at Broadbottom during during the reign of the three Henrys. Henry V succeeded Henry IV in 1413, and was succeeded by Henry VI in 1422. All that is known of John's wife is that she was called by name of Jane.

See Ante Fan of Heir Lines

VIII William Woley sometimes called Oley, son of John, was living on Riber Hill, in the parish of Matlock, Derbyshire, in the time of Edward IV(1461-1483) and was living as late as 1514. The Wolley Collection includes a copy of an agreement, dated 22 Henry VII (1506) between William Oley of Riber and John Fagg of Matlock. His marriage to Margaret daughter of John Fagg and Mary Robotham of Riber, may have brought him there from Cheshire (no great distance). In his will, dated 1507 he made wife Margaret and son John his executors. Riber is a hill top, overlooking to the south a broad area of nearly level land, now all grass, but formerly cultivated, and to the north the valley of the Derwent and Matlock bridge, where the village later developed. The Court Rolls show William as a juror in several trials from 1489 to 1514. His son

IX. John Wolley inherits his father's property, and in 1541 he grants to his son Anthony all his lands in Broadbottom which were of the estate of his father William. Nothing further is known of him, nor does he appear as a juror in the memorial courts. As his son does so appear as early as 1550, the presumption is that John was then deceased. His son he had Robert b 1528 - line of Wolleys -

X. Anthony Wolley, of Riber, appears as a juror, 1550 to 1558. Among the State Papers, Domestic, of Queen Elizabeth's reign, the Muster Rolls for 1559 show that Anthony Whole(Wolley) of Matlock "hath one plate cote, two long bowes, two sheffe of arrows two sculls and one black bill". The scull was a steel iron cap, a form of casque or helmet, fitting close to the head.

In his will, dated June 13, 1576 (see appendix) he directs "my bodye to be buried under my tomb whyche I have caused to be sett up in the in the Parish Church of Matlock". (pictures of this tomb in possession of Mrs C. B. Hynson and Mrs Margaret Kissam both descendants of this Wolley) This tomb stood directly in front of the pew between the nave and north aisle, at the chancel end.

In the rebuilding of the Church in 1872(the present being the fourth church on this spot) the tomb was removed and rebuilt against the west wall of the south aisle. It is about six feet long, two and a half feet wide, and two and a half feet high.

Riber Hall is on the highest point of the road which crosses Riber Hill. On a higher point , behind the Hall, stands "Riber Castle" built about 1860 by Mr Smedley of the Hydropathic Baths, and is generally known as Smedley's Folly" he having died soon after this grandiose pile was finished.

Addition to Riber Hall was made by Rev. John Chappell, who was rector of Matlock parish 1662 to 1688. Near it on the same road is the Manor House an older building which once carried the memorial rights and privileges. (pictures of this Manor House and Riber Hall in possession of Mrs C.B.Hynson and Mrs Margaret Kissam) I did not learn of the Manor House until to late to visit it, but I was shown through Riber Hal by Miss Gregory whose father bought part of the building. In my researches in the Court Rolls, etc., I found reference to the Lord of Matlock Manor, but never saw his name. My conclusion is that a Wolley (perhaps William VII) built the Manor House because he was lord, and that a descendant built Riber Hall.

Bryan's History of Matlock states that after the death of Anthony Wolley XIII with out issue, his sisters sold the Riber House. A glance at the pedigree shows how this Anthony became the head of the family. The Riber House that he mentions was therefo most likely Riber Hall, as sold to Rev. Chappell. All that we know of the wife of Anthony X is that her name was Agnes. His children, six in all, whose effigies and initals appear on his tomb, were , as given by Adam Wolley, as shown on the tomb-

XI. John Wolley of Allen Hill. A pedigree recorded in the College of Arms states that "Anthony Wolley of Riber, in the parish of Matlock (& 6 titles) died Sept 1576. He purchased the Estate of Allen Hill in the said Parish , of Richard Wendaley Esq Jan 31 1561 et settled it by deed 21 July 15 Elizab: (1573) on his son John". Allen Hill , Church, and Riber Hall all three on a straight line. Matlock appears in the Domesday Book, ~~1003~~ 1080 to 1086 as a Royal Manor of Hesterforde, with berewicks of Heslach, Dimtretone, Wodneslie, Houteshale, Ibeholm and Taneeslage. The first Manor House of Matlock was probably where the eldrectory now stands. And the Manor first held by A. de Matlock, rectors later of Matlock parish .

The date of John Wolleys birth is not known, but he died June 3 1585, accord to Adam Wolley's pedigree. date I think should be ~~1582~~ 1587 as there was formerly a grit stone in the floor of the church six feet long having incised a plain Latin cross, various initials, and the date "IIIV Juen I567". This was suppose to be the cover of the tomb of John Wolley of Allen Hill. see Stathams History page I9, of Matlock Church.

John's wife was Mary, daughter of Thomas Revell . The Court Rolls show that John with others, stood frank-pledge for some youths 22 Elizabeth (I580). At that per when a youth reached the age of fifteen, he had to take the equivalent of an oath of allegiance, with one or more substantial men vouching for him, hencethe name of frank-pledge.

John's children, so far as known were;

*Adam

John, from whom descended William Wolley the antiquary, who wrote a manuscript history of Derbyshire about I7I2. ~~His brother of Robert of L.D. above of Matlock~~

Agnes.

XII. Adam Wolley, inherited the Allen Hill property from his father, who may have built the present kitchen, which has a stone floor, low beamed ceiling with small room above. the main portion bears a wall tablet, partly illegible, which appears to have "A.W."on it. this portion may have been built by Adam's son Anthony. the porch bears the date, I687, which was the period of Adam, great grandson of THIS Adam.

Among the Wolley collectionof manuscripts is an agreement in Latin, dated 30 Sept 23 Elizabeth I580) between John Wolley of Matlock and Henry Hayward of Darley, concerning the marriage of John's son Adam, to Henry's daughter, Grace, John settling on Adam all his lands and tenements. Adam to furnish meat, drink and shelter to his father during the latters life. In I606 Adam received a legacy from his father-in-law. Another deed in Latin, dated I623 is from Dorcethe and Thomas Flint, to Adam Wolley, and to Anthony Wolley, his son and heir.

A wall tablet in the Matlock church reset in I872, probably in a new place, bear the following inscription;

"Near this place were interred the remains of Adam Wolley, of Allen Hill, in this Parish, and of Grace his wife. He was born in the year I558 and married at Parish Church of Darley, on the Ist day of Oct I58I, and after continuing in wedlock with said wife for so long period of 76 years, died in the mon of August I657, in the I00 year of his age; she was born in the year I559, and di in the month of July, I669, aged II0, and for purpose of recording so extraordina but well authenticated an instance of longevity, and long continuance in the stat of wedlock, their great,great, great, greatgrandson, Adam Wolley, of this parish, ent, caused this memorial to be erected in the year I824". this last Adam Wolle the collector, died I827, bequeathing to the British Museum 53 Vol of Mss.

Adam Wolley and other minors, took the frankpledge, John Bowne and others vouching for them, in Elizabeth's reign, but the yera is missing from the (Coyrt Roll's 52/643) Adam was a juror at Matlock I595, I608 and I6I0 as as Adam Jr. (having an uncle of same name who also served in the sameperiod)

He was assessed as a gentleman in I6I0, for L6 and paid tax of 5 shillings in I628 on an assessment of 3L paying 4 shillings; in I642 on 3L (Subsidy Rolls) a shilling then was equal to a large amount now.

Adam had three sons;

Anthony, heir ancestor of Adam the Collector.

*Edward

XIII. Edward Wolley, born at Allen Hill, being a younger son, had presumably the choice of the army or the Church. He chose the latter, but I do not find that he graduated at either Oxford or Cambridge. At the latter University one Edward Woolley matriculated as a pensioner in the Easter term, I622 He was for more than a dozen years vicar of the Parish of Crich , this is a village with about a score of houses, none of which except the public house appears to be less than two centuries old, most of them are of stone work.

it is a bit of unspoiled Old England, five miles south of Matlock. It was a place of some importance in Saxon and Norman times, and has a twelfth century church with a Crusader's tomb. the vicarage which Edward Woolley occupied is well preserved and now divided into cottages. Edward Woolley He married at Crich, 27 Nov 1616 Margaret

How the name Pontius Wooley came into the family has been one, many genealogists + others have wondered about, the one logical reason is the following but no proof to back up the opinion of many who helped at this problem, first — the name Pontius appears in the Stelle family, and as records show,

Elizabeth Woolley, daughter of Edward & Lydia (Allen) Woolley married, Gabriel Stelle, son of Pontius Stelle;- Monmouth Co. N.J. then it was suggested that a Peter Wooley born abt 1700 son of William and Ann (West) Woolley, Monmouth Co. N.J was the father of Peter 1732;- only one mention in Stillwells Vol 5- of Monmouth Co.
